Women Here Are Large Part Of Labor Market

(Special to the Ledger & Times)
NEW YORK, Apr. 26 — In Calloway County, the chances of finding a housewife at home between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. are slimmer than ever.

If she is not there, she is probably doing what 25 million other women in the United States are doing these days — working in an office, store or industrial plant or engaged in some professional or technical activity.

Not that she has resigned her other job, that of wife and mother. She is handling both.

Managing the two takes a bit of doing. But she is aided by the vast array of modern labor-saving devices and equipment that make short work of household chores. In addition, there is the variety of prepared and semi-prepared foods that enable her to turn out a meal in jig time.

Government figures show that the proportion of women in the labor force is rising locally but that it remains smaller than in most parts of the United States.

On the basis of the latest national study, made by the Department of Commerce and the Bureau of Labor Statistics, some 27.0 percent of Calloway County's female population over age 14 are now employed.

This is below the average in the United States, 32.2 percent employed, and below the East South Central States average of 30.0 percent.

Because of the steady influx of women into the nation's labor force, the country is now at the point where one-third of all jobs are held by women. Many of them, however, are on a part-time basis. The trend has been most marked among married women, especially those in the upper age groups. They have more time on their hands than formerly because their children are old enough to be on their own.

The Labor Department's study shows a 78 percent rise in the last 15 years in the number of working women over age 45. In the 25 to 44 age groups, the rise has been 42 percent.

In Calloway County, in the six years since 1960, when the last census was taken, the proportion of working women has continued to edge upward.

Since that time, when there were 2,177 local women holding down jobs and the proportion working was 26.3 percent, it has moved up to 27.0 percent.

Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Miss Lala Dowdy has a memento which will make a conversation piece for years to come.

She got a large slab of a Ginkgo tree which will be made into a table. The slab is 34 x 30 inches in diameter and comes from a huge Ginkgo tree which was felled to make way for a Howard Johnson motel at Louisville.

This particular tree, in all probability, is one of several given to Henry Clay by the Japanese ambassador in about 1855. The tree was over 100 feet tall and the slab Miss Dowdy has, came out of the tree just above the ground. The tree was about 60 inches in diameter near the bottom.

With a tree of such historic value, the architect showed extremely.

RAIDON 475 — A U.S. Air Force Phantom jet shot down a Russian-built MIG21 fighter today in a dogfight over North Viet Nam, an Air Force spokesman reported. It was the second consecutive day of clashes between U.S. and Communist planes.

The American pilot shot down the MIG21 with a Sidewinder missile, the spokesman said at Da Nang Air Base 375 miles north of Saigon. He declined to speculate on the nationality of the MIG.

Two MIG21 jets dived with a pair of Air Force Phantom jets during raids over North Viet Nam on Monday. A spokesman said the Americans fired 10 or 11 missiles but missed the 1,300-mile per hour planes.

There also was a dogfight on Saturday when American planes spotted a mixed flight of MIGs and MIG 21s. The war's biggest air battle developed and two MIGs were shot down in the first fatal clash in 10 months.

Diplomatic sources disclosed in London early this month the Soviet Union early this month the Soviet Union had stepped up delivery of the MIG21 to North Viet Nam but there was no indication who would pilot them. Air Force sources speculated that Chinese Communist pilots flew the planes.

The Russians were said to have sent at least 40 MIG21s to Hanoi. The MIG21 is described as more maneuverable than the American Phantom jet but the two men Phantom is faster, with a speed of about 1,400 miles per hour.

Today's was the first MIG21 reported downed in the Viet Nam war. The spokesman said the MIG21 pilot was "believed" to have ejected.

A Bible Thought For Today

Set your affection on things above . . . —Colossians 3:2.

Set your affection on all that is conceived as belonging to the peace and nobility of the heavenly; set it above whatever deadens the imagination, renders less sensitive the conscience, and leads to a loss of self-respect ending in sorrowful regret. We all know enough to name most of them.

Today is Tuesday, April 26, the 116th day of 1966 with 249 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning star is Venus.

The evening star is Jupiter.

John James Audubon, American naturalist, was born on this day in 1785.

On this day in history:

In 1897, the first British colonists to establish a permanent settlement in America, landed at Cape Henry, Va.

In 1865, federal troops killed John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln, near Fort Royal, Va., despite orders to capture him alive.

In 1964, a test of the Salk anti-polio vaccine began in 46 states.

THE MANY IMAGES OF JOHN F. KENNEDY

Not too long ago this column reported that the face of George Washington has probably appeared on more varieties of medals, medallions, tokens and store cards than any other face in history.

Now it appears the late John F. Kennedy is running the father of our country a close second.

This interesting numismatic fact is made clear by Edward C. Rochette, executive editor of Numismatic News and Coins Magazine in his new book, "Medallion Portraits of John F. Kennedy."

No one knows for certain how many specimens bear the portrait of Washington. These have been issued by various nations, civic groups and even private business firms for almost 200 years.

KENNEDYANA

The remarkable fact emerging from Mr. Rochette's excellent book is this: over 600 varieties of Kennedy medals and tokens have made their appearance since 1960, the year of the Kennedy election. This simply has to be some kind of record.

STORY TO TELL

The book properly divides its contents into the periods that relate to Kennedy's activities. The election year, the inaugural year, the years

Kentucky A Wilderness When Shakespeare Penned The Lines

"A Horse, My Kingdom For A Horse," All Owners Like Winners This Time, Year

By CHARLES PENTECOST
United Press International

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky was an uncharted wilderness when Shakespeare penned the lines "A horse, my kingdom for a horse."

And most 20th Century Blue Grass State Thoroughbred owners would hook the family mini-jump cups at this time of year for a Kentucky Derby winner.

But getting a Derby winner involves a lot more than taking a bundle to the Thoroughbred sales at Saratoga, N. Y., or Keeneland and saying, "I'll take that one—he looks like Derby material."

There's plenty of drama — and heartache — between the time a Thoroughbred is foaled and his owner receives the $5,000 gold Derby cup from the governor of Kentucky at historic Churchill Downs.

In the first place, it helps if the potential Derby candidate is a colt instead of a filly. Only one filly, Regret in 1915, has succeeded in beating the boys for the Blanket of Roses.

Next, if he can win most of his starts, or all of them as this year's favorite "Graustark" did, it will be a big help.

Then if his breeding is good enough and his owner wants to put up the $100 fee he can be nominated for the Derby. There's only one chance, though, for the Derby has no supplemental nominations.

Nominations are announced in March and there were 150 this year. Injuries, as usual took their toll, and one of the eligibles died a few weeks later.

But by mid-April, particularly with a highly touted superhorse such as Graustark in the field, the entries have been cut to 12 or 15 possibilities.

Two days before the Derby an additional $250 is required with the final entry fee of $1,250 usually reducing the Derby field to those Thoroughbreds which belong there.

All too quickly, the longest for moment arrives and they're parading to the post, tense jockeys in the irons and as sleek as their admirers' grooms can make them.

After the bands play "My old Kentucky Home" there is the shout "They're off!"

They go past the grandstand, the first turn, the backstretch the far turn and finally into the stretch and the finish line.

Millions throughout the nation will join the 100,000 at Churchill Downs May 7 for that breathless two minutes or so required for selecting a new king of the turf.

The Derby is then history and Thoroughbred owners begin looking forward to that first Saturday in May, 1966.

Miss Patsy Hendon Honored At Shower At Crowell Home

Miss Patsy Hendon, bride-elect of Stephen Trizarico, was complimented with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Thomas Crowell, Murray Route Five, on Tuesday evening, April 21.

The honoree chose to wear a tulle-trimmed gown of pale blue with a corset of red roses by the hostess. Her mother, Mrs. Edward Hendon, presented a gift of a corset of white carnations.

Miss Hendon's lovely gifts were placed on a table covered with a white cloth and centered with a miniature bride doll.

The serving table was covered with a white cloth and centered with an arrangement of spring flowers flanked by white tapers in silver candleholders.

Red punch was served from the crystal punch bowl along with individual cakes decorated with wedding bells, nuts, and mints.

The hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Crowell and her daughter, Suzette and Kathy.

Household Hints

Use the flat side of a knife to mash garlic cloves with salt to bring out the juice. Then spread the mashed garlic over lamb before roasting it.

Roquefort-flavored spread is good on bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwiches. For one sandwich, use a fork to blend 2 tablespoons of crumbled Roquefort cheese with 1 tablespoon each of butter and mayonnaise.

Bride to Open Gifts Beforehand

DEAR ABBY: I am a bride-to-be and a snoop is a liar, and with a problem. The bride has invited to Italy, but we could not go. I have decided to save all her wedding gifts to open at the reception. There will be a five-piece band for dancing and I would like to enjoy myself at the reception. I am told that it is customary for the bride to open her wedding gifts and "help" her. How can I get out of it?

DEAR BUGGED: Try to persuade the bride to open her gifts beforehand. If she opens only 150 gifts at the rate of one every two minutes, it will take five hours which is enough to wither anybody's meagles!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to my nephew's wedding in Italy, but we could not go. Nevertheless, we sent a gift of one hundred dollars plus the finest casserole set on the market. Last week we received their thank-you note saying they appreciated our gift, but they had the "small income" of having to pay $10 custom duty on the casserole set! I admit we did not consider the duty and to be paid by them. But for them to remind us of the 10 dollars duty they had to pay struck a very sour note with me. We have always been very generous with this nephew. Do you think we should reimburse him the $10?

HIS AUNT

DEAR ABBY: In this case, the recipients were well able to pay the duty. But this may be an opportunity to advise others to inquire about the "duty" on a gift to be sent abroad before sending it.

DEAR ABBY: What's happened to you? Where are the guts and gumption that made you famous? I would have given "UNSTEAMBORED" an answer something like this: "May I suggest that you tactfully tell your mother that you don't believe her cock and bull story about how she accidentally found your diary in your drawer while looking for something else. Neither do you believe that she accidentally bent one of the pages with her long fingernails while moving it, and while trying to straighten it out happened to see something you had written about her. Furthermore, tell her that if she didn't pry and snoop she wouldn't see things that weren't meant for her eyes. And remind her that those who eavesdrop seldom hear anything good about themselves. And stop it with, the only thing that is poor judgement, in our opinion, in not building the motel around the tree, or at least using the tree in some way to set off the motel."

In the first place you just do not find a Ginkgo tree that big just any where you might go.

We have one in the yard which is about as big as a pencil. Maybe in about a hundred years it will be a huge tree, unless somebody builds a motel there.

Spirea is blooming all over town. This is the big white bush you see.

Asaleas are at their peak, and so are the white and pink Dogwoods. Drive around and look at the "cascades" in yards all over town. They'll all be gone in a few days.

Happiness is finding that that angle of vines is Virginia Creeper and not Poison Oak which we first thought it was. Poison Oak or Poison Ivy has three leaves. The "V" is blunt leaved and bushy and the key is sharp tipped leaf and viney.

Virginia Creeper has five leaves and is non-poisonous.

The man who loves his own work is wealthier than the richest . . . Plaque.

Reide: The two things I cook best are meat loaf and onion soup. Groom: This is fine.

If you make a right turn from a left lane, you are probably just careless caused by spending a difficult day at work, and not the stupid thing the fellow behind you called you.

A woman's idea of keeping a secret is refusing to tell who told it to her.

William Feather had the following which points up some ideas we have had along the same line.

One day the woman proprietor of a candy and cigar stand displayed for sale a basket of fine eating apples. The workers in the office building bought her out in a few hours.

Next day, and for several days following, requests were made for more apples.

The proprietor explained that the man who sold her the apples had never returned for another order. "And," she added, "I don't intend to call him up."

In other words, she had the idea that the function of the apple man was to solicit orders. She wasn't going to put herself out to buy a basket of his apples, even if she did make a profit of 50 per cent in the resale.

This false dignity is an obstacle that many people erect in their own paths. They refuse to do anything not in line with specified duties. Business offices are cluttered up with men and women who are only half as effective as they might be, just because they have it in their heads that their job is defined by a white chalk line.

ed from his flaming fighter before it crashed.

The plane was shot down in a dog fight between two F4C Phantoms and two MIGs about 65 miles north-northeast of Hanoi. American planes have been bombing rail lines leading from Communist China in this area. The Phantoms fly escort for the slower fighter-bombers and are equipped with radar and other devices to trigger their deadly weapons.

No major ground fighting was reported in South Viet Nam today but in Saigon a terrorist tossed a hand grenade tonight in the yard of the home of the South Korean general commanding South Korean forces in Viet Nam. The grenade injured a guard and damaged the automobile of Gen. Chua Myung Shin's deputy, Brig. Gen. Lee Hun Sap.

The spokesman said he did not know the nationality of the two MIGs. But reliable intelligence sources told UPI Monday that two MIGs, involved in a dog fight with U.S. planes in the same area Saturday, were Communist Chinese.

The single-seated, dirt-drooped MIGs, one of the best warplanes in the Communist arsenal, were attacked by two F4C Phantoms Monday about 85 miles northwest of the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi. The Phantoms were flying cover for U.S. bombing runs when they picked up blips on their radar.

The spokesman said the U.S. plane immediately wheeled to the attack and fired its missiles, but the MIGs were out of range.

Each Phantom usually carries four dual-seeking Sidewinders and four radar-directed Sparrow missiles.

The Phantoms are capable of speeds of more than 1,400 miles per hour. The Russian-built MIG-21s are reported to be in the same speed range. They are said as the mightiest planes in Peking's air arm.

"We assume the MIGs took evasive action," the spokesman said. Officials and Navy jets flew 35 missions and the Air Force flew 30 against military and communications targets throughout North Viet Nam. Air Force B-52 heavy bombers from Guam hit suspected Viet Cong concentrations 72 miles northwest of Saigon.

In other fighting, U.S. land, sea and Air Forces reported killing 40 Viet Cong and possibly another 45 scattered actions throughout South Viet Nam.

BABIES COST MONEY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., 275 — Dr. Paul F. Maddox, Champaign, Ky., Monday told a Planned Parenthood-World Population conference here that a child born in a low-income family could cost taxpayers $800 annually. Maddox said birth control methods encouraged at his clinic in Champaign were chiefly responsible for the reduction of Wolfe County births from 194 in 1961 to 124 in 1965.
